

Punishment reaffirms the collective conscience by publicly responding to moral violations.

Its main audience is law-abiding members of society, strengthening social solidarity.

