	5.	Show Snippet Show Page Section: Page: 44 Search Result: The successful treatment of the sick that was an important part of the missionaries' work was probably a great help in getting converts. Apart from the efforts of the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel there was little medical aid and Europeantype education made available to the various ethnic groups. (These beneficial services were also later offered by the Roman Catholic Mission that started work in the Third Division in 1882 and the Methodist Episcopal Mission that since 1904 has mainly worked amongst the Chinese.) Only when small-pox epidemics threatened, were Malay vaccinators sent up-river to inoculate the population, but apparently their work was carried out in a rather haphazard fashion. ⁶³ S.G. , June 1, 1905. 1.	Show Snippet Show Page Section: PUMÉ FORAGERS Page: 431 Search Result: None of the three savanna study communities have a school, health clinic, store, electricity, well water, nor can they be reached by permanent road. The savanna Pumé are monolingual. Very few speak any Spanish and none in our sample have attended school or is literate. The savanna Pumé have access to a few nonlocal goods through trade with the river Pumé, their horticultural neighbors who live along the major rivers that are the transportation routes into the region. In the past, vaccination teams sporadically visited the savanna interior. Some older individuals have been immunized, but these visits have not occurred for some time and very few children (n = 3) in the study communities have been inoculated in the last 10 years.	Speech (191) Public utilities (385) Miscellaneous facilities (368) External trade (439) Public health and sanitation (744)

Au bout d'un an, en décembre 1960, la piste d'atterrisse était en service depuis plusieurs mois. Le Centre de Coordination Indigéniste comptait cinq bâtiments. L'édifice principal se divisait en quatre salles. L'une servait de salle à manger aux Pumé qui venaient de loin pour travailler à Rieci. S'y ajoutaient: un dépôt de matériel, un bureau où tous les samedi les Indiens venaient chercher leur salaire, et qui faisait également office de poste de santé et de classe pour les enfants dont les familles habitaient Rieci.	Settlement patterns (361) Miscellaneous facilities (368) Airport facilities (508) Public welfare (657) Public health and sanitation (744) Education system (871)
